

Simple tool for trying something new

Commit to trying something new together in a relatively short time frame. Set some soft parameters around what you hope to learn and how you will record those discoveries. If you're trying something new, think about how you might prepare yourself or your team to get the most out of the experience by having a learning goal instead of a performance-based goal.

This might look like:

1. We are wondering about...

2. We want to try this to learn more...

3. Here's what we found out or learned...

Afterwards, reflect on the following together:

What did you learn?

What would you change or adapt for next time?